Of Grief Are Seen Everywhere

IN THE STRIKEN DISTRICT IN NEW YORK

Six Hundred Bodies Have Been Recovered So Far.

BURIAL SATURDAY AND SUNDAY.

Divers Still at Work at the Wrecked Steamer—Bodies Found Far From the Wreck Today.

New York, June 17. — Another step toward the grave was made in the steamer Slocum tragedy today. Five hundred of the dead lie in their late homes, shrouded and encased for burial. A few funerals took place today but the great bulk of the dead will go to their last resting place tomorrow and Sunday.

The stricken district is swathed in black. The black, white and purple crepe on the doors of hundreds of houses denoting the presence in the buildings of the victims of the tragedy hundreds of other houses and stores have been decorated with long wide streamers of black indicating the sympathy and fellow feeling of neighbors. Great crowds are thronging through the district of the mourning today, many of whom are stopping in the houses of the dead to pay their last respects.

At the morgue this morning the coroner's list showed that 599 bodies had been received. The great majority of the dead so far recovered have been identified and nearly 500 bodies had been claimed and removed by friends or relatives. Less than 100 bodies remained on the East Twenty-sixth pier at 9 o'clock, but scores of persons were again at hand looking for their dead.

It is still extremely difficult to estimate the number of missing. Some of the city officials stick to the figures given yesterday that over 1,000 have perished, which would show a missing list of more than 400. It is believed, however, that this is an exaggeration and that when the story is all told, the dead will be found to number about 800.

The men to whom has been assigned the gruesome task of recovering bodies from the wreck and the waters of the sound were at work at an early hour this morning. They were finding bodies more slowly this morning, but they will stick at their task for some days to come. Bodies are now being recovered in the East river, miles from the scene of the accident, where they have been carried by the tides.

Grief stricken searchers hung around the building all night in hopes of hearing something of the lost ones. Mothers with babies in arms huddled against the dock fences and stared with vacant wondering glances through the windows at the coroner's clerks who were working on the lists of identified dead as if waiting for some sign that would tell them of their missing.

The supply of coffins at the command of the department of charities was exhausted and Commissioner Tully ordered that as many as were needed should be bought of the dealers.

The family of Henry Millitor of Mt. Vernon, was completely wiped out. With a friend Mr. Millitor identified his wife, his eight children and four sisters-in-law, all of whom were at the morgue.

Four different and separate investigations are under way looking into the causes of the disaster and to determine where the blame for the fearful loss of life lies. Secretary Corley of the department of commerce and labor has arrived here and with Supervising Inspector Uhler he will continue the investigation commenced by Chief Inspector Rodie, of the steamboat inspection bureau. It is difficult to say what results may be obtained from the federal investigation.

District Attorney Jerome is making a rigid investigation and has produced some damaging testimony. He has the testimony of Mate Flannigan of the Slocum who informed him of the uselessness of the fire hose and several members of the crew have informed the district attorney of the condition of life preservers. Some of these flimsy life preservers with their sawdust filling are now in the district attorney's office.

The inquest which is to be conducted by Coroner Barry will begin Monday. Coroner Barry says that several members of the crew have disappeared.

John Rice, a diver, examined the charred hull of the General Slocum off Huntspoint this morning and reported that there were many bodies in the submerged paddle box.

New York, June 17.—Up to 8:30 o'clock this morning the bodies of 524 persons who lost their lives in the steamboat General Slocum disaster on Wednesday had been identified. The unidentified bodies number 75 and 600 persons are reported missing. At the morgue there are 107 bodies this morning, 32 of which have been identified. These will be removed by relatives during the day. Commissioner of Charities Tully has issued an order that all bodies not identified this morning shall be embalmed.

"The death list of the burned steamer General Slocum will include between 1,300 and 1,400 persons." This statement is made by Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon.

"There were about 1,600 persons on that boat," said Dr. O'Hanlon, "and only 200 have been accounted for." Simultaneous with this statement came the announcement of John Rice, the diver, when he came to the surface, said that he could see at least 200 bodies inside the hull. At present they cannot be reached. The latest police figures give the list of bodies recovered as 599. All flags in the city are at half mast.

LETTER

Received from the Missing Bankers

CAMBRIDGE MEN BELIEVED TO BE IN MEXICO

Suit is Commenced by Mr. Orme as Receiver Against Barber

TO RECOVER SUM OF $26,687.48.

Vice President of the Cambridge Bank Charged With Overdrafts to That Extent—The Situation.

Cambridge, O., June 17.—Assurance is now had direct from the missing Commercial bank officials, Cashier P. C. Patterson and Vice President H. O. Barber, that they have left town for good for parts unknown. This corroborates the dispatch published exclusively in the Advocate earlier in the week.

Receiver Orme is in receipt of two communications from Barber. They are written in pencil, one dated June 11 and signed, and the other undated and unsigned. Both came through the mail postmarked at Cambridge, June 14, at 9 p. m., and addressed in pencil. One of these is as follows:

"Mr. Orme:—I signed transfer of stock in the book. About the middle of book. Make them out to you and Moss. I also authorize you to sign deed for one-half interest in Mitchell property, which I give you on note. Everyone has it in for Press and I also, will turn over everything and know you can get through without us better than with us."

The other reads as follows: "I hereby authorize and empower R. V. Orme and William Moss to sign all papers, transfers or anything necessary to transact any of my business. Also, authorize them to give transfers of stock from myself to either Orme or Moss."

(Signed) "H. O. BARBER." The stock book referred to is that of the Cambridge Power, Light and Traction company. Barber's stock in which has not yet been issued to him, though he had received the original stock of the Consolidated, and its whereabouts are unknown. The Mitchell property is the 20-acre piece near Byesville, owned by Orme and Barber equally, and Barber's interest in which Mr. Orme, as receiver, has already attached for the benefit of creditors of the Commercial bank. The note referred to is one for about $2,000, which Mr. Orme personally held on Barber. Instead of trying to save himself for this claim, as Barber evidently intended, Mr. Orme attached everything he could find as receiver as above stated, after receiving these letters, and neither he nor Mr. Moss is claiming anything under them.

The reference to "Press," is evidently intended to mean Cashier Presley Patterson. Who it was that mailed these here on the 14th, three days after Barber and Patterson left, and where the letters were in the meantime, is unknown to either Mr. Orme or Mr. Moss, and is subject for conjecture.

The contents of the letters plainly imply that Barber and Patterson left premeditatedly. The general supposition is that they went to Mexico. Receiver Orme of the Commercial bank has filed suit against Barber, asking judgment for $26,687.48.

The petition alleges that Barber owes the bank this sum because of overdrafts made by him.

There is no expectation that the whole sum will be collected, but the attorneys for the receiver think they will find enough to make the suit worth while.

Receiver Orme has been investigating the condition of the bank. It is understood that enough is in sight to make it look as if depositors may get 40 per cent out of the bank's assets, and, if stockholders are liable under the old double liability law, they will be called on to pay in the full face of the stock they hold.

Depositors have already begun turning in their pass books. Many of them have not been balanced for a long time.

The bank's loans amounted to $158,661; cash on hand $44,414; capital stock paid in $40,000; deposits $152,143.

N. P. LIMITED IS HELD UP IN MONTANA

THREE MASKED ROBBERS BLOW UP CARS WITH DYNAMITE.

Safe Blown Fifty Feet but Was Not Opened—Passengers Badly Frightened—Nobody Hurt.

Butte, Mont., June 17.—The North Coast Limited, through train east-bound on the Northern Pacific, was held up by three masked robbers at 11 o'clock last night, two miles east of Bearmouth. The baggage and express car was blown up by three charges of dynamite in the effort to get at the express safe. The safe was blown through the roof of the car and about fifty feet to the side of the track, but was not opened, the contents remaining intact. The railroad officials claim the robbers secured very little of value.

No one was injured and no attempt was made to hold up the passengers.

After the robbers disappeared the train backed into Bearmouth, where the wrecked car was cut out and the train proceeded on its way east three hours late. Poses started out from Bearmouth, Drummond and Deer Lodge, the latter posse headed by Cot. McTague with bloodhounds from the state pen, but did not reach the scene of the robbery until the robbers had several hours' start and, owing to the darkness, was unable to get on their track. The same train was held up and robbed at the same place a year ago and Engineer New killed.

The robbers boarded the tender of the engine at a water tank and, after keeping quiet until the train had gone a mile and a half, they crawled up over the coal and covered Engineer Wade and Fireman Reed with their revolvers and told them to throw up their hands. Engineer Wade was then commanded to bring his train to a standstill and he immediately complied. The engineer and fireman were ordered from their engine and, with the hold-ups, went back to the express car.

Before making an effort to gain an entrance they forced the engineer to light a cigar. The express messenger was commanded to open the door, but he refused. The engineer was next commanded to light a stick of dynamite and place the lighted stick against the door. He obeyed and the force of the explosion wrecked the door and the engineer and fireman were compelled to precede the robbers into the car. When admission was gained the bandits directed their attention to the strong box. Five sticks of dynamite were placed on top of the safe and ignited, but the force of the charge was insignificant and another and larger cap was used. The second charge exploded with terrific force, blowing out the side of the car and throwing the safe a distance of forty feet.

They then left the express car and the crew were ordered back to the engine, being covered with revolvers until they had obeyed the mandate. The men then passed to the rear of the train and, after putting out the lights, disappeared in the darkness. The meanwhile the passengers were terror-stricken and had crawled to every place which afforded a hiding place. The rear brakeman the moment he understood what had happened, slipped off the rear of the train and ran back to this city.

Two boys, Ralph Daly and Albert Horton, were stealing a ride on the blind baggage and both say they can identify the men.

The Doctors Declared Schiller Dead

EXECUTION AT PENITENTIARY EARLY THIS MORNING

Was Not as Successful as the Authorities Desired.

GROANS CAME FROM THE VICTIM

After Death Current Had Been Turned Off—Finally Roasted in the Electric Chair.

Columbus, O., June 17.—Michael Schiller, wife murderer, withstood two contacts of electricity before death came to him in the electric chair early this morning.

At 12:02 o'clock, in the presence of 30 spectators, Warden Hershey turned the electric current into the body of the law's victim. After the usual charge, the current was turned off. Four physicians examined him and he was officially declared dead. The spectators filed silently from the closed room, but they had not proceeded far down the ghastly corridor, when Prison Physician Thomas called the Warden back. Schiller had been unstrapped. He partially fell over and then signs of life were seen.

He was straightened up in the chair, and he began to breathe heavily. Saliva ran from his mouth, and guttural groans sounded throughout the chamber, chilling the strongest men to the very heart. The executioner had signaled to the engineer in the power house that all was over and the current was turned off. When the physicians announced that a second contact would be necessary a prison "runner" was dispatched to the engine room.

Fully two minutes time intervened, and in the meantime, the condemned man seemed to be regaining consciousness. At one time he appeared to throw back his head as if making a desperate effort to talk. The sight was absolutely sickening. Spectators expected to see him wholly recover.

The current was again turned on, and at 12:05 the victim was given the second shock. Twice had 1750 voltage been shot into him. Again the party fled from the annex and were about to leave the prison, when Warden Hershey was once more summoned to the chamber of death. Schiller had been unstrapped, and when the body fell forward it was not as limp as in death. He was picked up and a third current was turned on for two full minutes, and then there was no further doubt of Schiller's death. He was literally roasted.

Several causes are assigned for the failure of the machine to cause instant death. One is that Schiller's physical resistance was unusually powerful. He was a big man and of a brutish nature. A second is that the current was not as strong as it should have been, and this is generally accepted.

When Schiller walked into the death cell he stepped to the chair without a word. He cast an appealing look on the crowd. He asked to be allowed to talk to "Jim Thomas," the sheriff, and when given the opportunity could not say a word. Finally he said "Good-by, Jim," and then the first shock was turned into him. Up to the last Schiller refused to accept religion.

The execution of Schiller was one of the most sensational that has occurred in recent years. Besides the failure of the electrical machinery to do immediate execution there were other hair-raising incidents. At 11:45 o'clock Governor Herrick wired official confirmation of the respite granted to Charles Stimmel. The death procession had formed and was on the way to the annex, with Warden Hershey at its head, when he was called to the long distance telephone. It was a message from Governor Herrick confirming his former orders. The telephone call came at exactly 12 o'clock. When it was announced that the Governor wanted to talk with the Warden, there was the thought that Schiller was to be respite, but his friends lost all hope when informed of the news.

Schiller recovered his nerve and he did not show as much worry over his impending doom as was anticipated. He did not want Warden Hershey to serve the usual pre-execution banquet, because he did not think it an occasion to celebrate. In order to tempt his appetite the Warden offered to serve him a "Dutch" lunch, but Schiller refused it.

"Beer and whiskey were the cause of my downfall," he said, "and I don't want any more of them."

Schiller did not show any great concern during the day, except when he referred to the three children whom the law would make orphans. His daughter Minnie wrote to him, in which she begged him to accept the Catholic faith. She also wanted to set right the story printed about him in which it was said that she was afraid of him. She denied this, and said she sympathized with him. In spite of the final entreaties of the daughter Schiller refused Catholic baptism, and he would not permit Chaplain Starr, a Protestant, to ask for forgiveness for the crime he committed. Up to the last minutes of his life Father Kelly and Chaplain Starr labored with him, but without success.

Michael Schiller of Youngstown murdered his wife on July 20, 1903, while he was on a drunken spree. They had trouble over property which Schiller says he decided to keep, and which she would not turn over to him. He disemboweled her. Three children, all of whom are in Cleveland orphan homes, survive him. They visited him just a week ago.

AUTO. RACE

Won by Frenchman With Jenatzy Close Second Today.

Hamburg, June 17.—Emperor William of Germany gave the flag signal for the first car to start precisely at 7 o'clock this morning, and with a mighty cheer from thousands watching the start, the great Gordon Bennett automobile cup race was begun. Twenty-five thousand spectators saw the start. The last car of the eighteen starters got away at 8:58 this morning. At the end of the second round, Jenatzy, the German rider, was leading, having completed the round in two hours and 55 minutes.

They, the Frenchman, driving a Richard-Brasier car, won the James Gordon Bennett automobile cup race. They beat Jenatzy, the German, by but a few minutes.

It is reported that Jenatzy, the German rider, while leading in the automobile race, ran over and killed a man along the route.

TO THE FRONT

Batteries Were Rushed From Newchwang—Kuroki Attacking.

Newchwang, June 17.—Firing has been heard distinctly in the direction of Kai Chou since 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Two batteries of artillery rushed through town at midnight. The second division of General Kuroki's army was reported to be marching toward Kai Chou Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of taking the enemy in the rear.

It is positively known that the Russian forces in the vicinity of Kai Chou are divided. Half are at Kai Chou and the remainder about 20 miles east of there. The entire force numbers 35,000 men, including 600 Cossacks. There are rumors of fighting at Port Arthur, with the Japanese almost in the city.

A private letter from Mukden says the press correspondents there are not hopeful of getting news from the Russians who give every indication that the correspondents are not wanted. Many of the correspondents are preparing to leave.

It is said that an American dressmaker will do three times as much work as a dressmaker in France.

"I have received the following dispatch from Lieutenant General Baron Stakelberg, dated June 16, 1:20 a. m.: "Yesterday I had intended to attack the enemy's right flank, but just as our troops had been assigned for the purpose, and were beginning to successfully envelop the enemy's right flank, the Japanese in turn attacked my right flank with superior forces, and I was compelled to retreat by three roads to the north.

"Our losses are heavy, but they are not yet completely known.

"During the engagement the Third and Fourth batteries of the First Artillery brigade were literally cut to pieces by the Japanese shells.

"Of 15 guns 13 were rendered completely useless, and were abandoned.

Instead of rapping, the landlady grasped the knob with her long, determined hand and rattled it roughly. In reply came a faint little bark and a gentle voice.

"Yes, Mrs. Siefke, come in."

Mrs. Siefke did not come in, though. She crashed open the door, wounding its varnish on Lois' trunk.

"Packed," she inquired.

"No, no, I haven't packed," the girl replied nervously, while the fox terrier grumbled. "I can make it all right by this evening. I'm sure I can, Mrs. Siefke."

"You've thought that for a lot of evenin's. What you lookin' for now?" Lois pointed proudly to the array on the cot.

"These are the best I've done," she said. "I'm going downtown with them now."

The landlady, her bony hands firmly clasping her hips, said "Humph!" Then she added:

"Tonight's your last chance. Settle or leave." She trod away down the hall, walking heavily on her heels as always.

Lois choked a little. But when she turned back to the cot her pride prickled up.

"Aren't they beautiful, Holy Terror?" she said. "Mrs. Siefke doesn't know anything about art."

The terrier jumped upon the cot and burst into a spasm of glowing barks over them. His ears were up and his stub of a tail quivered.

"They were all the work of her hands, and Terror sniffed them lovingly, tracing her in every one. They were the high water mark of her artistic ambition—couch cushions and opera bags and book covers and photograph frames, all of leather, wrought in elaborate designs by burning. On the book covers were outlined willowy ladies, who appeared to be absorbed in their reading. The photograph frames and the opera bags were etched in wreathe

SEE SANK IN A HEAP OUTSIDE THE DOOR. and scrolls. One of the cushions was of brilliant green leather, and in its center, in deep black burning and vivid water color, was a life sized portrait of Holy Terror. This was her masterpiece.

"We can't fail to make money from these, can we, Terror?" she said. "We've worked so hard over them."

It was true that they had worked together. Ever since she had set out to make pyrography her life work Terror had helped her. All the preparations were watched critically by him, and as soon as the hot point began to move over the stamped design his labor commenced. Every line and curve and dot of the etching he followed with his busy strawberry nose, the same nose that had frightened away the bench show prize.

"I like strawberry noses much better than black, Terror," Lois told him when she took him home dejected. It was the only time in his life that he had ever placed his stub of a tail at half mast; he knew bitterly well that he had failed.

When the portrait, the masterpiece, was being etched, he had spent days of exultation.

"Do you think it's like you, Terror?" At moments she feared it was only the green leather that pleased him so mightily, for green was his favorite color. But it must be that he knew, she reassured herself. At any rate his nose followed the hot point like a sleuth's and whenever the point stopped he would raise his head and bark "Hurrah!" in two sharp yaps.

When the etching of Holy Terror's outline was done, Lois painted in his spots of black and white, and with a final tender and brilliant carmine touch she colored the strawberry nose.

"Take a last look at your portrait," she said to him now.

She laid the articles in a neat box and wrapped and tied it. Then she dressed for the street. It was close quarters for dressing in the hall bedroom with the cot, the chair, the washstand, the trunk and the chiffonier, that skyscraper of dressing tables that serves in the lack of ground space.

Holy Terror had his customary bark at the impossible head, which for many Winters now had clasped her fur collar.

"If I bring back a great deal of money, Terror, perhaps we can throw this away and have a new stole that won't get on your nerves."

With the box under her arm she told him goodby. She hated to leave him. As a rule, they were inseparable, but she had met with those who did not understand him in some of the shops, and she explained to him that it was best he should wait at home for her.

The walk downtown was miserable without him. She longed to feel the tug of his buoyant strength as he dragged her at the end of his chain. She longed to watch his pointed muzzle prying out the way ahead of her and returning with noisy reports. She longed for his infectious cheer that had filled over many a dark hour in the ball bedroom.

On the avenue she came to the shops where pictures are sold. These she canvassed, as she often had done before, feeling that pyrography had its place among works of art. Then there were shops that had departments of fancy goods. She made the rounds.

It was dark when she turned the latebay. She knew that the dinner would be cold and that the waiter would frown, and she did not care for dinner anyway. She started upstairs.

Mrs. Siefke met her at the first landing.

"Well, got it?" she asked.

Although Lois could not see on the dark stairway, she knew the landlady's hard hands clamped her hips.

"I can't—not tonight!" The girl's voice broke wretchedly.

"Humph!" said Mrs. Siefke. "I knew you wouldn't. There's no use goin' up. Your room's locked and your goods are attached."

Lois turned white and silent, taking it in. From above came a furious barking.

"Oh! Holy Terror!" the girl cried, and ran up the stairs. She seized the knob and shook the door. The barking came from within.

"Terror! Let him out, Mrs. Siefke," she called.

Below, the landlady chuckled with irony. "He's attached all right," she said comfortably.

"No! Not Terror! Mrs. Siefke, you can't—oh, take everything else!"

She heard the landlady walking off heavily. "Terror!" she cried passionately, and sank in a little heap outside the door, while he leaped madly against the inside, scratching and yelping and rattling the latch in vain.

When Burr met her at the door he wondered at her being alone.

"It's disobliging of you to be going out just as I'm coming to see you," he said blithely. "And where's Holy Terror? Has he thrown you over?"

"No. He's upstairs," she stammered. "I've got to go—I'm so sorry, but it's urgent business."

He looked at her keenly, then he turned and walked beside her, with his great, sure strides.

"My aunt is ill. Can you manage to stay with her at her home tonight? She'll consider it a great favor."

"It was a somewhat random shot, but I think it has hit the mark," he said to himself later, after he had delivered her at his aunt's house. Then he set out to call on Mrs. Siefke.

They returned together, Burr and Holy Terror. Lois was down in the kitchen. Terror rushed into her arms like a miniature hurricane, and their emotions merged in a hysteria of sobs and barks.

Burr stood above them and watched. "It's odd," he remarked, "how a life of art bars out a husband, but does not in the least interfere with a fox terrier."

At what followed Holy Terror burst into a fury of jealous barking.

Shellfish as Traps.

The familiar story of a mouse being trapped by a live oyster, though curious, is not the only instance of the kind. The great naturalist Frank Buckland records the story of a rat which was caught by the same apparently harmless shellfish. Some years ago a common rail was found dead on the shores near Penzance. Its beak was tightly caught in the clutches of an oyster, which was still alive. The bird and oyster were removed and mounted. An even more queer case was that of a small salt water fish which was found in a pool in the rocks caught firmly by an immense mussel. One would think that the mussel must have been pretty sharp in closing his shell. A story is told of a colored man who was caught in a similar fashion. He put his tongue into a half opened oyster to get the juice, and the oyster caught him tight by the tongue. Jupiter when released was chafed by his friends. "Why, the oyster couldn't have hurt you," said one, "for he hasn't any teeth." "No," replied Jupiter; "maybe not, but de Lawd knows dat he have terrible hard gums!"

Brave Japanese Fishermen.

The Japanese as a race are fearless. This is evidenced by the hazardous occupation of the little brown men who earn a living far from the rocky coast lines of the island. One of the chief articles of diet in Japan is fish. To secure it for the market the Japanese go many miles from land in their tiny craft, which to those who do not understand their strength and buoyancy look as though any ordinary wave would capsize them. These Japanese go 200 and 300 miles at sea to catch fish. Each year the shores of the islands are strewn with wreckage from the boats, while the sea gives up the bodies of the brave men who were caught in the fearful typhoons which sweep around this corner of the earth. Then, again, the ocean liners take the lives of many of these doughty Japanese. There is never a diminution in the numbers of the fleet.

MANAGERS

Of Teams in Protective Association Will Meet President Gaucher in Columbus, June 22.

Columbus, O., June 17.—At the Great Southern next Wednesday 25 managers of teams in the Protective Association of Baseball clubs will meet. President Gaucher, of Zanesville, was here Thursday to make the arrangements.

The managers, in getting together, hope to book their teams up solid for the rest of the season. It is impossible to arrange a regular schedule for so many teams.

Other important business will be handled and it may be that the meeting will last two days.

Teams in the association have headquarters in the following towns: Charleston, Pt. Pleasant, W. Va.; Parkersburg, Sistersville, W. Va.; Marietta, Zanesville, Coshocton, Circleville, Lancaster, Newark, Mt. Vernon, Mansfield, Piqua, Urbana, Paulding, Findlay, Futures of Toledo, Chicago (O.), Alliance, Akron, Kent, Warren, Niles, Youngstown, Sharon, Pa.; Homestead, Pa.; Kane, Pa., and Fairmount, W. Va.

Games This Week.

As far as Newark is concerned, the Zanesville ball club, instead of being called the "Moguls," should be dubbed the "Rainmakers," as it seems next to impossible for the two teams to get together on account of inclement weather. Thursday's game was postponed, but the teams are playing today. Urbana will be here Saturday and Sunday and good games are to be expected when these teams clash.

BENNY

Urbana's Crack Catcher, Accepts Advance From Grand Rapids and Has Left for That City.

There have been some changes in the Urbana team and when they line up against Idlewild Saturday and Sunday at least one player will be missed by local fans. Benny, the crack catcher of the Blue Sox, has jumped the team, and his unique coaching will be missed. Benny was a born kicker, and had a voice that would sour milk at a distance, but his earnest work and clever playing made a hit with Newark crowds on former occasions, and his rasping but encouraging "Workin' nice kid," addressed in stentorian tones to his pitcher will be missed. The following from Urbana tells of Benny's going:

Urbana, June 17.—Catcher Benny of the Blue Sox, jumped the team for Grand Rapids. Central league team Thursday morning, having received advance money from the management of the latter team.

Joe Toohey, who was with Rochester, New York State league team, early in the season and later released, has gone to join the Schenectady team in the same league.

Joe Collins, who received the offer from the Binghamton club, has decided to remain with the Blue Sox the balance of the season.

HALF MILLION

Won by Bookmakers When Hermis Beat Irish Lad in Classic Suburban Handicap.

New York, June 17.—E. R. Thomas, five-year-old Hermis, son of Hermence-Katy of the West, sometimes known as the "$50,000 beauty," won the $20,000 Suburban handicap for 3-year-olds and up at one and one-quarter miles, in impressive manner, yesterday afternoon by two lengths, with The Picket, winner of the Brooklyn handicap, second, and Irish Lad, the hope and inspiration of the $5,000 metropolitan race-goers present, third.

Hermis opened at 6 to 1 and closed at 22 to 5 in the betting. The Picket was at 5 to 1 and Irish Lad the hottest kind of a first choice at 4 to 5.

Until the barrier was sprung Irish Lad remained the most emphatic and decidedly overwhelming favorite seen since the days of Gold Heels. Irish Lad was decisively and soundly beaten.

Mr. Thomas made a neat little speech, and was cheered again and again.

He will divide the winnings in all

POWDER SIFTINGS

On His Clothing Ignited By a Spark From His Pipe.

Fostoria, O., June 17.—Wilbur Smothers, 18, was probably fatally burned last evening while going home from work. He worked in a firecracker factory, and his clothing was filled with powder siftings. A spark from his pipe alighted on his clothing and he was instantly aflame. His companions assisted in tearing his clothing from him, and he was carried into a neighboring house. He was deeply burned over his abdomen, the left arm and hands.

HACKMEN'S COMBINE BLOCKED BY MAYOR.

Coshocton, O., June 17.—Local hackmen, who combined to raise rates for Old Home day next Saturday, have been notified by Mayor Rimer that he will enforce an old ordinance and charge every hackman a license fee of $5 for Saturday.

An alternative is offered that the hackmen donate the use of one hack free to the committee for four hours.

The visitors will be given free transportation from the railway station to the fair grounds.

It is said that $1,000,000 in American eagles may show a loss of $100 from abrasion in being carried from New York to Paris.

JOE McNULTY

CREATES LIVELY SCENE IN THE MAYOR'S COURT.
Disputed Witnesses and Used Profanity Freely—Was Bound Over and Sent to Jail.
The trial of Joe McNulty, who is jointly charged with Max McCann with burglarizing Flory & Miller's law offices, was called before Mayor Crilly Friday afternoon. McNulty again became recalcitrant and caused a sensation in the court room by his language and behavior.
The Chief of Police had just concluded his testimony relating to McNulty's arrest and "Holly" Jamison, who searched the prisoner at the county jail was put on the stand. Jamison is jailor at the county jail and detailed his search of McNulty's person saying he found a key.
"You're a liar," shouted McNulty, "you didn't find a key on me."
"Keep quiet," cautioned Chief Sheridan and Mayor Crilly.
"I'll not keep quiet," responded the thoroughly aroused prisoner, "you are jobbing me and have fixed it up to give me the worst of it. That man is swearing to a lie, and he knows it."
"If you don't keep quiet I'll hit you over the mouth with this mace," said the chief, to which the prisoner replied:
"If you do there'll be a fight right here."
At this remark Mayor Crilly ordered the prisoner handcuffed in his chair, which was done, but he still interrupted the examination of the witness by shouting "you're a liar." At this Chief Sheridan made a move towards McNulty as he sat in his chair, but the prisoner muttered sarcastically:
"You're a brave one. Any one could do that with these bracelets on me," accompanying the remark with some selected profanity.
Charles W. Miller prosecuted the case, and Charles Flory identified the key which Jamison said he found on the prisoner as belonging to his office, and Mayor Crilly bound McNulty over in the sum of $1,000.
Chief Sheridan Friday morning received photographs of McNulty with records of three terms in the Ohio penitentiary, the last time for robbery being sent up for six years from Franklin county, his term expiring last January.
MAGNIFICENT AND IMPOSING.
The most glorious, elegant, colossal and fabulously rich pageant of all time will be seen in Newark, June 22, at Y. M. C. A. Athletic Grounds, when Gentry Bros. come to town. The dainty ponies and miniature cages furnish a sumptuous eye-feast of kaleidoscopic splendors, teeming with life, action and color. There is elegant costumes, curious banners, devices, trappings, golden gongs, half a hundred blue-blooded canines, arrayed in ribbons of various gaudy colors, camels, sacred cattle, gorgeously caparisoned animal actors, elephants with howdahs, richly embroidered cloths and other expensive objects. This makes a picture of iridescent splendor eloquently expressing more than a page of descriptive painting, making a vision of beauty and splendor never seen before. There will be two performances, at 2:30 and 8 p. m. The doors will be open one hour before the time for the starting of the entertainment. Admission 25 cents.

THE CLASS OF 1904.

An event which marks an epoch in the life of a young man or woman, and is rightly entitled to great importance, is the completion of a common school education and graduation into the real world of activity where success or failure awaits them, in proportion to the habits of persistent industry, intelligent effort and honorable action, which have been inculcated in the home, and supplemented and developed during twelve years in the school room.

The class of 1904 which was graduated Thursday night ranks high in its standard of excellence in scholarship and healthful moral tone of the members composing its roll, compared with the forty-six preceding classes.

The thirty young men and women have given conscientious effort to attain those standards set by competent instruction and well-graded curriculum, and the diploma given to each is a certificate of the successful completion of the work set for them, but, after all, this diploma is rather a badge of qualification for work, than a meed given for completion of successful endeavor and should be so regarded by those who received it. The graduate from a High school of the standing of the Newark school should possess equipment for a successful prosecution of any life work, and the members of the class of 1904 have undoubtedly learned those lessons of application and mental training which will make them honored and respected alumni in years to come.

A number of the graduates will supplement their High school education with a complete college course, several, it is understood, intending to enter Denison university and other colleges in the fall. The teachers are encouraging the students to pursue this higher course of study, and the boys and girls will make no mistake by following their advice, as a four years' college course added to the regular public school work will be found to be of great advantage in the years to come, no matter what line of work each graduate desires to pursue. A High school course is good; a college course is better—provided, of course, that the student has ambition and ability together with a desire to make the most of his opportunities.

We join with other friends of the schools and graduates in extending congratulations.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Two Orphans" was given a most excellent staging and interpretation by the Garrick Stock company at Idlewild Park Casino Thursday night, the largest audience of the week being well pleased with the work of the company since its practical reorganization by Mr. Kussell. New talent has been secured and some of the old re-assigned to parts more congenial than those in which they first appeared.

The increased patronage and universal verdict of those who saw the Thursday night performance was most gratifying to Manager Harris of the Park and Manager Kussell of the Garrick Stock company.

Mr. Harris, as is well known, has always insisted on the best and will be satisfied with nothing less, and Mr. Kussell has most cheerfully co-operated in making the Casino performance what it should be, even to the extent of almost a complete re-organization of his company.

"The Two Orphans" will be given the remainder of this week, including a matinee on Saturday afternoon at which the prices will be 5 and 19 cents.

Beginning Sunday afternoon the piece to be presented will be "An American in Russia," the change in the bill being announced later.

BAND IN BLUE

Headed the Confederate Veterans As They Marched Through the Streets of Nashville, Tenn.

Nashville, Tenn., June 17.—The remnants of the South's once great army honored the people of Nashville and their thousands of guests by a parade throughout the principal business streets. It was the feature of the closing day of the fourteenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans.

The band of the Seventh Cavalry, U. S. A., led the parade, and several United States mail carriers were at points along the line of march dealing out ice water to the thirsty veterans. There were camps from Montana, California had its delegation, and so did Maryland, while four veterans from Campbell Camp of Columbus, Ohio, had a place in the line, one of their number proudly bearing a large placard announcing their home city.

The R. E. Lee Camp of Ft. Worth, Texas, had its banner borne aloft by a color bearer, who stands 7 feet 5.

It is estimated that 10,000 veterans marched in the parade, and the crowd which cheered them for the two hours and a half which was occupied in passing through the streets numbered 80,000. The sponsors, dressed in white, and riding in beautifully decorated carriages, formed a brilliant contrast to the somber gray of the old veterans.

The Sons of the United States Veterans concluded the business of their reunion. They elected the following officers:

Commander-in-Chief, N. R. Tisdell, Ft. Worth, Texas.
Commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, John J. Davis, Louisville, Ky.
Commander of the Department of Tennessee, R. Lee Bynum, Jackson, Tenn.
Commander of the Trans-Mississippi Department, C. A. Skean, Waputucki, Texas.

The veterans held a brief session to complete the business of the reunion, General George P. Harrison, of Opelika, Ala., introduced a resolution, at the request of the Alabama Daughters of the Confederacy, asking that the veterans appoint a committee to confer with the Daughters upon the matter of revising and modernizing the words of the South's most famous song, "Dixie." A prolonged discussion followed.

The convention voted to appoint the committee as a matter of courtesy to the Daughters of the Confederacy, but the veterans are firmly opposed to any change.

The reading of greetings from the Wisconsin Grand Army veterans, now in annual encampment at Madison, occasioned prolonged cheering. A suitable acknowledgment and greeting was ordered sent by General Lee.

Don't forget the 15 cent social at St. Paul's paragonage tonight. Ice cream, cake, strawberries and coffee. Everybody welcome to come.

SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Class of Thirty Bright Boys and Girls Received Diplomas Thursday Night from David M. Keller President of the Board of Education.

On Thursday night at the Auditorium thirty young men and women, having completed the prescribed course in the Newark High school, were graduated with honors, and received diplomas which will be regarded by them as rewards of merit.

This important event in the lives of the members of the class of 1904, which was the forty-seventh to be graduated from the Newark schools, was made remarkable by the elaborateness of the program and the large attendance of friends of graduates and the Newark schools.

The stage was beautifully decorated and presented a lovely woodland scene, the floor being covered by a green baize, and the work of the artist being supplemented by a profusion of natural floral and foliaceous beauty.

The graduates sat in a semi-circle, the arrangement of the chairs being in amphitheatrical form, each one of the young women holding a bouquet of red or pink roses. As the curtain rose the scene was one of beauty and the audience spontaneously broke into applause.

The lower left hand boxes were reserved for members of the Board of Education, and with President D. M. Keller, all the members were present. The box above these was occupied by members of the Beta Phi Fraternity, the leading Greek letter society of the High school.

The music for the commencement was furnished by the High School Glee club, assisted by Miss Bertha Penney as soloist, and Miss Glenn as accompanist, the entire musical program having been prepared and rendered under the direction of Prof. N. B. Yeardley, instructor of music. The choral numbers were rather ambitious for a High school chorus, but, barring the slowness of the tempo maintained through the majestic "Lucia" chorus, and the bright and sparkling "O'er Forest, O'er Mountain, O'er Meadow," by Rossini, the renditions were very creditable and manifested much intelligence, and painstaking drill on the part of Prof. Yeardley.

The words of the class song were written by Miss Alice Conn, the music being composed by Miss Laura C. Coffman.

The program in full as carried out was as follows:

Invocation .... The Rev. T. W. Locke

Presentation of Diplomas—Mr. D. M. Keller, president of Board of Education.

Miss Muriel Bournier Acton took for her subject,

"Nature's Secrets."

Miss Acton spoke of the wonderful progress made during the past century in wrestling from nature her inmost secrets and applying them to the convenience, comfort and general well-being and happiness of mankind. Inventive genius had done so much that at one time appeared impossible, that it almost seemed as if the dream of the alchemist might be realized. She then spoke of discoveries and inventions in the field of electricity, dwelling on wireless telegraphy. She also cited the discovery of radium as one of the wonders of the century, as was that of anaesthetics, and prophesied that the discoveries in the next century would be as thrilling and wonderful as those in the last.

Miss Hattie B. Holman took for her subject one always dear to the heart of loyal Ohioans, a resume of the lives of the state's great sons who achieved the presidency. Every president elected by the Republican party since Lincoln, which means all but Grover Cleveland, were born in Ohio.

The list included Grant, whose career

Miss Holman briefly followed from the humble tannery, through West Point, his honorable and transcendent record in the Civil war and his wise and conservative policies as president; R. B. Hayes, who was born in comfort at Delaware, fought bravely for the preservation of the Union, was a successful lawyer and a wise and judicious chief magistrate; James A. Garfield, the driver of a canal boat team, whose career from log cabin to White House was a succession of remarkable episodes; Benjamin Harrison, born in Ohio, and, as Grant, justly claimed by this great state as one of her honored products, and last, the lamented McKinley, whose tragic martyrdom is still fresh in the minds of the American people.

Clyde Irwin gave a most clear and concise resume of the political entanglements in the far East, which every resource of diplomatic usage failed to unravel, and the final appeal by Japan to the court of last resort, the arbitrament of arms. The Russians, said Mr. Irwin, were fighting a war of conquest, the Japanese one to preserve the integrity of China and Korea. The speaker pointed out what he believed to be the advantage of Japanese success, as he thought a victory for Russia would mean a cessation of the open door policy in China.

Bright Hilliard handled an exhaustive subject in a manner which gave life to a statistical resume which with less skillful arrangement would have been tedious. "Achievements" was the theme of her essay and she spoke particularly of the men who achieved something usually in spite of discouraging circumstances, which would have appalled minds less determined than those possessed by Robert Fulton, who applied steam to navigation; Benjamin Franklin, whose researches in science and successes in diplomacy and statecraft have become an inspiration; Professor Morse, who suggested and saw completed an ocean cable, and others. She also spoke of the proposed Panama canal as one of the great achievements of all history, which is soon to become an accomplished fact.

Russel H. Legge made a forceful appeal for successful methods in the social uplifting of the dwellers in cities. With all due respect to the many and useful influences brought to bear through the agencies of private societies, whose object is the purification of civic life, there is yet some vital element lacking. Mr. Legge expressed it as his opinion that this element was governmental control of these agencies, defending his position by remarking that the state had a right and it was her duty to prepare those for the duties of citizenship who could not otherwise be reached.

Elsie B. Davis asked the question, "What's in a Name?" and answered it by saying that character was the desideratum, and when that was well rounded, it made little difference what name attached to the individual, as his life of virtue and success would lend luster to any cognomen. Miss Davis gave a history of the derivation of many of the common Christian and surnames which was both interesting and instructive. The essay was carefully prepared and very well delivered.

President Keller, in presenting the diplomas to the members of the class, made the following address:

President Keller's Address.

Members of the Class of 1904:

On behalf of the Board of Education I congratulate you upon your successful completion of the courses of study in the High school, which you have elected to pursue for the four school years now ending. You have now arrived at the goal for which you have long hoped and worked. Your purpose to achieve this distinction has been a great incentive to your labors; it has made your tasks easier and encouraged and sustained you through many trials and difficulties. That you have accomplished your purpose proves that success comes to those who live for a purpose, and who with perseverance work for its accomplishment.

The exercises of this evening mark the ending of one and the beginning of another chapter in your lives. With the close of these exercises your tutelage in the public schools ceases.

A MYSTERY SOLVED

[Original.]

In 1880 I went to Chicago to live and purchased a dwelling house on what is called the north side. A house that had stood on the same lot had been burned in the great fire of 1871, the one I bought having been built two years later.

I made the acquaintance of Lloyd Churchill (the names in this story are all assumed) a steady, religious young man, and I invited him to dine with me. Churchill, I understood, had lost his sweetheart, Miss Haight, due to the Chicago fire, she having been among the missing after that great conflagration. I noticed during the dinner that Churchill was very much depressed, and later, when we were alone together, he told me that the house which had stood on the ground I now lived on had belonged to David Piggott, the only man he had feared as a rival for the love of Aline Haight. From what Churchill told me I gathered that Piggott was a wild fellow, and Miss Haight was a mild feminine type of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," now impressed by the piety of Churchill and now led away by the reckless pleasure loving Piggott. There was a mystery connected with Miss Haight's disappearance in this—that Piggott was also among the missing after the fire.

Churchill never married. He died in 1893, I being with him at the time of his death, for I had become much attached to him.

"I am going to Albee," he said. "I have always believed that she and Piggott were together on that terrible night, that he held her for the time being under his influence, but that she died true to me."

A few years after Churchill's death there were a number of burglaries in Chicago, especially in my neighborhood, and I never went to bed without fearing for what valuables I kept in the house. Among other things I had a great deal of old silver and jewels that had come to me by inheritance from different branches of my family. Since I had no use for either I determined to have a vault made in my cellar for their keeping. One morning I went down there to pick out a place for my vault. In a recess so dark that I was obliged to use a candle I examined the wall closely and noticed a line forming a rectangle about five feet high by three feet wide. I tapped the wall within this rectangle, and instead of giving the sound of stone it gave the sound of iron. Thinking it might be a door, I looked for a keyhole, but found none. Proceasing a hammer, I tapped upon different places till, striking a certain spot, there was a click, and what really turned out to be a door sprung outward about an inch. With my fingers I pulled it open.

What was beyond I could not see, for all was as dark as Erebus. The dank, musty smell was certainly uninviting. I held the candle inside and caught a confused view of what made me start away from the opening, and I didn't pause before I had reached the other end of the cellar. But curiosity soon got the better of terror, and I went back. This time I bent my head and entered the space that lay beyond the door.

It was a handsomely furnished apartment, though the hangings were dropping to pieces and the carpets eaten away in spots. In the center was a table, on which were dishes and traces of a supper, though only traces, for every crumb had been consumed. On a divan lay the skeleton of two women in the costume of young persons. They were locked in each others' arms. On the floor was the skeleton of a man and in an easy chair that of another.

I staggered to the doorway and recovered my equilibrium in the cellar. Then again my curiosity drove me back.

On the table lay a folded piece of paper which had evidently been torn from the back of a letter. On it was written:

Monday morning, Oct. 2, 1871. We, two young girls and two young men, came here last night. Something has occurred to bar the opening of our door, and we are imprisoned.

DAVID PIGGOTT, ALICE HIGHT, EDITH TURNER.

I stood successively before each skeleton to examine it. In the hand of one of the girls I noticed that the bony fingers clasped a piece of paper. I took it out and on it read:

Lloyd—If you ever get this it is to tell you that I have yielded to temptation, but I am sure that if I could live it would be always for you and the good, spiritual end.

I accounted for the causes leading to this singular scene in this wise: Piggott must have been full of these absurdities that we often find in youth. The fitting up of this place, which was doubtless more fascinating because it was a secret; the bringing of his friends here to a supper party on that memorable Sunday night before the great fire could only have been conceived by one with wild fancies, extreme recklessness and no principle. Shut in under ground, they had not heard the turmoil above until the house fell and closed their egress. They must have lived as long as their supper lasted, for there was ventilation into a chimney that was left standing.

What did I do? Procured a supply of stone and mortar and with my own hands walled up the opening.

JOHN B. ARMSTRONG.

When you buy coal you find some stones mixed with it. These stones cost as much as the coal. They also take up and waste more heat than the coal they displace would have developed. Just so with the foods you eat which you do not digest. People who would quickly build Brawn, Brain and Bone should eat plenty of "FORCE." Because it is not only rich in the Phosphates and Nitrogen of Wheat that build Brain, Nerve, and Brawn, but is mated with Barley, so that it digests other foods in the stomach, extracting greater nutrition from them. Had an Exciting Experience With a Highwayman in Central Newark Thursday Night.

Mrs. C. C. Cooper and Mrs. Nettie Reese had an exciting experience Thursday night at the corner of Sixth and Church streets, while on their way to their homes. # HOME DUTIES

Women seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful, and keeps the nervous system unstrung? Irritability takes the place of happiness and amiability; and weakness and suffering takes the place of health and strength. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work and perform their household duties. They have been led to believe that suffering is necessary because they are women! What a mistake! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will banish pain and restore happiness. Don't resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy for women is always within reach.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For Proof Read the Symptoms, Suffering and Cure recited in the following Letters:

"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pains. Menstrues would occur every other day. For about five weeks I was so that I could not stand on my feet from weakness. I also had severe pains in limbs, my head at times seemed as though it would burst. I was completely played out; could not sleep. My kidneys were also affected. I could not begin to explain all I suffered. Your medicine completely cured me, and I cannot tell you how thankful I am to have my strength back. I can work at anything."

"Your medicine is certainly wonderful, and I am not afraid to tell any one of its merits. It is a great thing in our home. I wish to have this letter published so that any one suffering may read it, and use your Vegetable Compound and be benefited."—Miss Lizzie Mott, 1136 Durfor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice has restored to health more than five hundred thousand women. Why don't you try it, my sick sisters?

"Last Summer I was very miserable. I suffered with falling of the womb, headache, a bad discharge, aching of limbs and very painful menstruation; would be confined to my bed from three to five days every month."

"My husband got me three bottles of your Vegetable Compound. I had been taking doctor's medicine nearly two years and never got any help, and before I had taken half a bottle of your medicine I felt some relief. My head and back felt better, and I could go to bed and sleep, which I could not before taking your medicine. After I had taken the three bottles and used the Sanative Wash, I was well and strong and felt like a new woman."

"Last September I became pregnant and again took your medicine, and got along nicely during pregnancy and got up from my confinement sooner and felt better than I ever did before. I have a nice baby boy. He is well and strong, the healthiest of my children, and it is all owing to your Vegetable Compound."

"I cannot find words with which to thank you. Your medicine is surely the best medicine in the world."—Mrs. MARTHA JACOBS, care of C. C. Holbrook, Johnson, Vt.

THE REAL TEST.

Of Herpicide Is in Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vipers may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.
Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE RAILWAYS

HEAVY PASSENGER TRAFFIC ON LINES TO ST. LOUIS.

B. & O. Protects Its Employees—Review of the Doyle Case Decided by Supreme Court—Notes.

A new problem confronts the railroads operating in this territory. While the passenger traffic managers of all the big lines have made what they considered ample provision for the transportation of large numbers of people to and from St. Louis, they did not take into consideration the possibility of such an influx of eastbound special rate to St. Louis from Pacific coast cities, and points intermediate between the coast and the Mississippi valley have induced many thousands of well-to-do people to turn their steps eastward. Many of these travelers buy tickets to St. Louis, and in St. Louis are able to buy reduced rate tickets further east. Consequently, an increasing volume of eastbound passenger traffic is overtaxing the facilities of most of the roads.

Trains on the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio are not only going to St. Louis crowded, but they are coming back crowded. Quite naturally this state of affairs is gratifying to the railroad managers, who feel more and more encouraged in the belief that increased profits from passenger traffic this summer may fairly offset the losses occasioned by a diminished freight traffic.

B. & O. Protects Its Employees.

The Baltimore and Ohio and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, which have been a little behind the other large trunk lines in declaring for the retrenchment policy, have followed at last, and as a result of the trip of inspection made over the system by President Murray and his executive officers orders have been issued to reduce the working forces wherever possible.

The same reason is assigned for the order that has accompanied the order for retrenchment on the other leading roads, namely, a falling off in traffic. The management has adopted what is now considered a better policy by reducing the working time of the men in the different departments and the curtailment of expenditures is thus distributed more evenly. The policy of President Murray has always been, as far as possible, to protect the interests of the employees, and the company is doing everything possible for the care of its men. Orders just issued provide for a reduction in working time in the locomotive shops of one hour a day, working nine hours a day instead of ten, and in the car repairers' shops, eight instead of nine. Mr. Murray contends that it is better to keep all men at work on reduced time, and but few men will be discharged outright.

The Doyle Suit.

As published in The Advocate last Wednesday, the supreme court has sustained the circuit court of Franklin county in the case of Mary Doyle against Baltimore and Ohio on Tuesday. John Doyle was an engineer and was killed in 1888 at Black Hand. Mrs. Doyle was appointed administrator by the probate court of this county and brought suit for damages in Franklin county, being represented by General Thomas E. Powell, and received a verdict for $8,000, which was reversed by the circuit court and the reversal sustained by the court of last resort. Ex-Supreme Justice Owen was against the company in the supreme court. Mr. Doyle, in his lifetime, owned and lived in his property on North Fourth street, which fell to the widow after his death, the parties having no children. Mrs. Doyle died some years ago, leaving the place to her mother, who has since died, having assigned the judgment to D. C. Grubb, of Butler. A banker of Butler was appointed administrator after the death of Mrs. Doyle and the case has been in the courts about fourteen years. Mrs. Doyle was entitled to the insurance from the Baltimore and Ohio Relief association, but resorted to the courts for damages for negligence. A point in the case was, having accepted the insurance, whether a suit for damages could be maintained. The court held that Mr. Doyle was a fellow servant to the operator, and in that case the company was not liable. The parties interested, or relatives, have long since passed to the other world, only the assignee being the chief party interested.

NEWARK BOY

MELTED HEARTS OF OFFICERS WITH HIS PLEA.

Clyde Warner, Accused of Taking Money From a Special Delivery Letter, Arraigned at Columbus.

Columbus, O., June 17.—Clyde Warner, aged 14, of Newark, tanned, freckled and frowzy, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Johnson on a charge of having abstracted $5 from a letter. He was a special delivery messenger last December in Newark, but recently has been employed at the Heisey glass factory in Newark.

Young Warner did not know what the technical charge meant, and his tears melted the hearts of the commissioners of the United States, Marshal Fagin, his deputy, Al Bauer, and District Attorney Moulthrop. They waived examination for the boy, and on his promise that he would appear when wanted, he was released.

"I'll be here if I have to walk," said Warner.

WOMAN

THOUGHT HUSBAND KILLED AT NEWARK

And Married a Knox County Man, But Husband No. 1 Appeared, So the Story Goes.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 17.—The Banner prints the following story which will interest some people in Newark:

A sensational story has come to the city from Howard township, that a stranger appeared at a residence there a few days ago and claimed to be the husband of the reputed wife of the man whose home he called at, but was ordered off the place under threats, and departed. The story goes that the woman thought her first husband had been killed in a railroad accident at Newark and had married again. Her second husband was employed on a farm, and it is said was compelled to leave the place by the owner when he heard of the advent of the first husband.

NO DIVORCE

Yet Each Remarried, and the Dead
Given by the Woman Is Invalid—
Queer Complication.

Muncie, Ind., June 17.—To the fact, that a young woman, who was formerly Miss Althe Frazee, of this city, apparently has two living husbands, to both of whom she was legally married, and that one of her husbands has two legal wives, are due complications which are puzzling local jurists.

Several years ago Miss Frazee was married to William Studebaker, of this city, and they lived together until her husband moved to Missouri. Later she understood a divorce had been granted to her husband, and she again married, this time to Joseph Miller. A short time before her marriage to Miller Mrs. Miller conveyed to Reuben Minnich a deed to one of the most valuable farms in Delaware county, signing the deed as an unmarried woman.

A few days ago the first husband, William Studebaker, returned to Muncie with a wife, to whom he had been married in Missouri, he having understood his first wife had secured a divorce.

The deed which had been signed by Mrs. Miller was not valid without the signature of her first husband, William Studebaker, so Minnich, who received the land, is now demanding a correction of the deed. In the meantime William Studebaker, hearing of the state of affairs, has left Muncie with his second wife, and Miller, from whom the former Mrs. Studebaker was separated, has also departed. As it now is, the former Miss Althe Frazee has two living husbands, while William Studebaker has two wives. Minnich is still holding possession of the land, valued at $70,000, although he has not a valid deed for it.

KEPT SECRET A YEAR.

Newark Couple Married in Kentucky on June 14, 1903 But the Fact Has Just Been Announced—Garrison-Cunningham Wedding a Surprise.

As Constable Albert S. Cunningham sat in his cosy home Thursday night, reading his Advocate he noticed that some one had read the paper before it came to his hands, and had cut out some item which probably interested the person who did it. He thought nothing of the matter however, and did not dream that it vitally interested him until his daughter, Florence, came into the room and laid the clipping before him. Then it was that the Constable was nearly lifted bodily from his chair by surprise, for the clipping announced the marriage of his youngest daughter Florence to Mr. Claude A. Garrison. An explanation was quickly made by the young woman and the father took the joke that had been played on him in good part.

It seems that the young people had gone to Kentucky on the 11th of June, 1903, just a year ago, and were married. The law of the Blue Grass state requires all marriages to be published within a year after their consummation, and at the request of Mr. and Mrs. Garrison, the authorities had agreed to withhold the publication until the time limit had expired.

It was not the intention of the young people to let any one know of their marriage until they were prepared to go to housekeeping, which will be in the very near future. Mr. Garrison was looked upon as Miss Florence's accepted lover by the Cunningham family, and not the least objection was ever interposed to his attentions, as he is a very worthy young man, but no one ever dreamed of him, a year Mr. Garrison was coming to the house to see his wife, instead of his sweetheart. The marriage certificate shows that the wedding was solemnized in Kent county, Kentucky, by Rev. J. W. Mitchell, the ceremony being witnessed by Eugene Benzah and Miss Sue W. Cole.

Mr. Garrison is a clerk in B. & O. freight agent Grantham's office, and the son of a well known glassblower of North street. He and his bride will for the present remain at Mr. Cunningham's residence, 38 Franklin avenue.

Don't forget the 15 cent social at St. Paul's parsonage tonight. Ice cream, cake, strawberries and coffee. Everybody welcome to come.

WEDDING

Of Oren Seward, of Newark, to Miss Mabel Jones, at Mt. Vernon, on Wednesday.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 17.—A very pretty home wedding occurred Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. Frank L. Jones, when his daughter, Miss Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Oren Seward, of Newark. The groom is a nephew of Judge Charles W. Seward and a prosperous young business man of that city.

The wedding ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by the Rev. J. Alfred Selby, of the M. P. church, in the presence of about fifty friends. The house was beautifully decorated in green and white. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of white chiffon and carried white carnations. The couple were attended by Miss Ruby Seward, of Newark, and Mr. Benjamin Shannon, of the same city.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a delicious wedding supper was served. The newly wedded couple departed for a short wedding trip and later will go to housekeeping in Newark.

The out-of-town guests were: Judge and Mrs. Seward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seward, Mr. Scogg, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Seward, Miss Ebbie Seward, Miss Ruby Seward, Mr. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Segg and Mr. and Mrs. Orrin, all of Newark; Mrs. Jessie Wright and Mrs. George, of Chicago, Illinois.

The bride and groom received many beautiful presents.
